OCI ADMINISTRATIVE BRANCH

GENERAL COMMENTS & RECOMMENDATIONS

OCI's Administrative Branch is an admixture of the formal method of operation and of the informal. Its distinguishing feature is the jack-of-all-trades approach of its personnel. There is little specialization, all its employees being involved to some degree in all aspects of administration.

The OCI approach offers certain advantages, as well as disadvantages. It offers the advantages of quick service for the operator, continued operation even in the absence of certain of its members and low supervisory overhead. On the other hand, there has developed a situation of the left hand not knowing what the right hand is doing and it has resulted in some wasted effort in record-keeping and logging and in utilization of personnel.

Organization of central administration in OCI is a curious structure, resulting from certain personnel problems, historical growth, and an attempt to continue utilizing the services of specific personnel even after reorganizations have changed the responsibilities of such people. Five significant administrative functions--training, career service, records management, coordination of CIA regulations and new building planning are located outside the Administrative Branch. They are carried on by the Chief of Plans Staff and by the Deputy Chief of Support Staff. Lacking these functions, the [] T/O of the Administrative Branch is more than ample for performing the remaining functions. It is probable, in fact, that with its present responsibilities, the Administrative Branch could perform quite satisfactorily with a T/O of five.

The Administrative Branch, in principle, reports to the Chief, Support Staff. The Deputy Chief of Support Staff is the former Chief of Administrative Branch. In actual practice, the Administrative Branch receives almost all direction and guidance from the Executive Officer, with some direct supervision by the Deputy Assistant Director. The practice conforms more closely to the situation in other DD/I Offices than does the principle. The OCI Executive Officer is chief advisor to the AD and DAD on administrative and management matters. The Chief of Support Staff is almost totally concerned with directing document registry and dissemination and technical operation of OCI's communications facilities. Interjection of Support Staff into the administrative operation does not enhance the efficiency of this operation.

General Recommendations

- a. Transfer the following functions to the OCI Administrative Branch (names of Branch personnel who could best assume these functions are also recommended):

SECRET

- 1) Records Management - [redacted]
- 2) Career Service - [redacted]
- 3) Coordination of CIA Regulations - [redacted]
- 4) Training (when feasible) - [redacted]
- 5) New Building Planning (when feasible) - [redacted]

b. Reorganize the central OGI administrative structure to provide for an Executive Office, consisting of two branches reporting to the Executive Officer: Administrative Branch and Information Control Branch. Note: While this will recognize the present actual mode of operation, it will not add responsibilities to the Executive Officer.

c. Realign functions within the Administrative Branch as follows, to improve utilization of personnel and eliminate wasted effort:

- 1) Transfer maintenance of training records from [redacted] (Admin Asst, GS-7) to [redacted] (Personnel Asst, GS-7).
- 2) Transfer review of Training Requests and maintenance of training liaison from [redacted] (Admin Asst, GS-7)
- 3) Transfer (from various Branch personnel) to [redacted] (Personnel Asst, GS-7) responsibility for maintenance of the following records relating to personnel: Promotion Kardex Fitness Reports, Training, Career Preference Outlines, T/O runs. Note: triplicate copies of T/O's now maintained by [redacted] should be consolidated, with [redacted] assuming responsibility for the one remaining copy.]

- 5) Reapportion the maintenance of personnel records between [redacted]

d. Provide a brief training period for personnel of the Administrative Branch in order to acquaint them with their primary and other responsibilities and in order to standardize procedures.

Specific recommendations, particularly with regard to record-keeping and logging, are detailed in the following pages. We have been advised that all or most of these recommendations have already been implemented.
